Dear St. Peter's Parishioners,

Please keep our Youth in your prayers, as many of them take Mission Trips this summer. The following students will be working in Lenexa, Chicago, and San Antonio. Please pray, today and during the week, that their experience will be marked by joy and hope, that their service to those in need will prove to be helpful, and that they will grow in knowledge and faith through the experience.

God Bless,

Five Steps to a More Generous Family

From the National Christian Foundation

We've probably all heard that "it's more blessed to give than to receive." Well, now there's proof. The book Who Really Cares by academic Arthur C. Brooks cites several recent studies that seem to back up this notion. Brooks draws the conclusion that, "charitable people are more likely than uncharitable people to be happy, healthy and financially prosperous."

Aside from these considerations, there are always the more obvious reasons to be generous – caring for the less fortunate and making the world a better place. With these myriad benefits in mind, the following are some steps toward becoming a more giving family:

- 1) Discuss how your family ranks in its generosity. Are you where you want to be? If not, discuss how you can be more giving.
- 2) Start small when you want to be more generous. Some families choose a percentage of income and give that amount away every year to trusted charities, trying to increase that amount by a little bit each year.
- 3) See your community with open eyes – In Jan Johnson's book Growing Compassionate Kids, she encourages families to look for ways to be generous in "life's normal moments." One tip she offers is to keep a "basic bag" in your car to hand out to someone in need. It can include things like a toothbrush, soap, a comb, or washcloth.
- 4) Realize that being generous is not just about giving money – In Dave Toycen's book The Power of Generosity, he encourages those on the path to becoming more generous to think about their talents and skills. What skills do you bring to the generosity table? How can you help a neighbor or community group with your gifts of time and talent.
- 5) Don't feel you have to reinvent the generosity wheel – Lots of organizations, churches, and schools offer ways to practice being a generous family without having to come up with a never-before-done idea.

Our parish secretary Ruth Davis will retire in August, and our director of social services Ray Hain will leave us in mid-August to begin teaching at St. Teresa's Academy. There is no way to express all our thanks, but we can't let them go without at least a small celebration. Please plan to come by to say "thank you" and "farewell."

St. Peter's Is Going Green

Unless you've flown over the St. Peter's campus recently, or spent some time on our rooftops, you may not know about our most recent addition . . . solar panels on the roof of our south school and McKay Center. These improvements to our campus will save us energy, reduce our electric bills, and make our parish a better steward of our natural resources. The parish contracted with Brightergy to install the panels. Brightergy is a Kansas City based company that markets distributed energy solutions, to install the panels. The system produces clean, renewable energy which will not only be more cost effective, it is environmentally friendly and will help to reduce our carbon footprint. The solar energy systems are being leased with no upfront costs through Brightergy's 20 year lease program, BrighterLease. The lease program was made possible through lower solar prices, Kansas City Power and Light rebates, and federal tax credits for energy conservation. And yet another bonus . . . this new system has created a learning opportunity for our students.

Faith Formation Team Bookshelf

Comes for the Archbishop
by Willa Cather

Pope Francis speaks often of the New Evangelism and the qualities which it calls upon the baptized to demonstrate to the world. In addition to joyful simplicity the Pope calls us to an attitude of inclusiveness. This inclusiveness requires the entire Church to welcome all of the many cultures and societies it encounters as it reaches out.

Oft times a good story helps enliven concepts that carry the risk of remaining abstract. This book written by a Nebraska woman in the first quarter of the 20th century is such as story. It recounts the encounter (perhaps best named the old evangelization) between French/Irish Catholicism of the early 19th century and the Spanish American Catholicism of the same time in New Mexico. The United States has just acquired New Mexico and the Vatican has created an American diocese there to replace its Spanish predecessor. A French-American bishop and vicar are sent from Ohio to organize it.

The book recounts the conflicts among the native American, Spanish and Franco-Irish cultures. And perhaps more than anything explores how things go wrong when well-intentioned religiously motivated people fail to accept the value contained in cultures and people who are quite literally "foreign" to them.

I first read this book in high school, have revisited since had a great discussion about it with a friend only two weeks ago. It continues to live over 85 years since first publication. It has been rated as the "7th best western novel ever written". Cather's characters have much to teach us as we explore the wider world in which the Pope calls us to proclaim the joy of the gospel.

Around Town

Shredding and Electronic Recycling Event

The Urban Ranger Corps, an organization working with inner-city youth, is hosting an event to shred your old documents and recycle your old electronic equipment. The event will be held at St. Elizabeth Catholic Church, 75th & Main, KCMO on Saturday, July 19, from 9 a.m. – 12 noon. The Urban Ranger Corps works with youth, 7th grade through high school, living in high-risk inner city Kansas City neighborhoods. During the summer the youth paint the homes of low income families and clean yards in the urban core. The rangers earn a stipend for their summer work. During the school year the staff works with them to ensure they maintain passing grades and/or graduate. You can learn more about the Urban Ranger Corps by visiting our website at www.urckc.org. For more information contact Carol Johnson, Event Coordinator, at carol.johnson@urckc.org.
